"I grew tremendously and learned many new skills over the past year, but if I had to pick the most important aspect of my growth, that would be personal development. Many of the students at our recent graduation agreed that we never expected to grow so much personally when we started our journey together. The focus on business and society, along with our class's diversity, definitely contributed to my leadership development and my perspective on developing company as a whole. Essentially, I gained and practiced a growth mindset."
